Brendan Bailey

Head of Sales, Southern Region
at Independence Australia

"We jointly identify the opportunities to support the not for profit sector - maximizing the services they can provide for their own core purpose".

Established with passion in 1957 at the Austin Hospital in Victoria to support people with paraplegic injuries, Independence Australia has evolved to a for purpose, social enterprise delivering positive impact with a national focus. As the organisation has grown and diversified, so too have the services that Independence Australia have developed, deliver and fosters for people living with a disability or personal needs.

Brendan says: "We're a national business distributing products to hundreds of thousands of customers all over Australia. Funds generated from the sale of personal health and wellbeing products, mobility aids and equipment sales, support the delivery of essential programs to help enhance the lives of people living with a disability or other personal need."

"Through partnering with CCI and joining together with other not for profit organisations, we strive forward with our goal of delivering outstanding service to the not for profit sector. Know that when you make a purchase through Independence Australia, your money is enhancing lives."
